Abstract

The present invention provides a laminate in which at least one fluororesin is used and which is highly impermeable to fuels.

The present invention is a laminate having a layer (A) comprising a fluororesin and a layer (B) comprising a fluorine-free organic material, wherein said laminate has a fuel permeation rate of not higher than 1.5  $g/m^2/day$ .

5